Becker Meisel's Business Service Group Continues To Add Value For Clients

Livingston, N.J., October 2014 – Becker Meisel's Business Services Group (BSG) has completed another successful transaction for Schultz Furriers, a long-time client of the Firm. Robert Schultz, founder of Schultz Furriers, was looking to acquire a storage facility in central New Jersey for the family owned business and turned to BSG to assist the company in not only the ultimate purchase of the property, but in assessing the viability of several potential candidate sites. Anthony J. Vizzoni, a member of BSG and the Firm's Real Estate Practice Group stated, "When Robert called stating that Schultz Furriers needed to quickly assess potential properties, choose a property, and close on that property in less than two months time due to the seasonal nature of the business, our team immediately began assessing the viability of properties and proceeded expeditiously to a timely closing on the selected property." Vizzoni continued, "We are pleased that we were able to accommodate our client's schedule, protect our client's investment, and deliver the highest quality of service, which we always strive to achieve."

Robert Schultz expressed his satisfaction with the successfully completed project and added, "As a relatively small business without the resources of an in-house general counsel, we continue to look to Anthony as our trusted business adviser for the everyday events, as well as the extraordinary events, that affect our business. BSG has also introduced us to a network of other professionals that has improved our business and has helped us achieve our company goals, as well. Through this unique relationship, Anthony and the other BSG lawyers have developed a keen, holistic understanding of our business and our needs. We highly recommend BSG for any business looking to improve its performance and enhance its business."
